Northwestern University Feinberg School of Medicine

Department of Pathology Presents

The Department of Pathology at Northwestern University Feinberg School of Medicine seeks a full-time non-tenure-eligible Clinician-Educator at the rank of Instructor, Assistant, Associate, or Professor, to join the divisions of Breast and Gynecologic Pathology. The successful candidate will have a strong track record of specialized training, productivity and scholarship in gynecologic or breast pathology. The candidate will join an outstanding team of gynecologic and breast pathologists that together diagnose over 8,000 gynecologic biopsies and resection specimens and over 6,500 breast cases per year. Advanced immunohistochemistry, FISH, and molecular studies are integrated into clinical service. In addition to clinical responsibilities and research, faculty are expected to play an active role in the teaching and training of medical students, residents, and fellows. Breast cancer is one of the areas of excellence at Northwestern Medicine, and the environment for hypothesis driven basic research and translational and collaborative research at Northwestern University, Northwestern Memorial Hospital, and the Robert H. Lurie Comprehensive Cancer Center is outstanding.

In addition to clinical responsibilities and research, faculty is expected to play an active role in teaching and training medical students, residents, and fellows.

Qualified candidates will hold MD or MD/PhD degrees and be board certified in AP or AP/CP from the American Board of Pathology, as well as be eligible for an unrestricted medical license in the State of Illinois. Fellowship training in breast pathology is required.

The start date is negotiable and the position will remain open until filled.

When applying, please upload a CV and cover letter describing your interest and alignment with the position.
